VETERAN NEW GUINEA MISSIONARY VISITS SEMINARY

One of America's foremost missionaries paid a visit to Divine Word Seminary, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi this past weekend. Father William A. Ross, S. V. D., a veteran missionary in the mountain area of Mt. Hagen, is as active today as he was when he first went to New Guinea in 1926. The remarkable 38 year old missionary was the first American man ever to set foot in New Guinea.

Father Ross has both seen and helped in the growth of New Guinea from the Stone Age to a rapidly developing country.

Father Ross addressed the community on his work in the past 38 years. He described how he had to go about learning the language from the natives when there was no recorded language or grammar at his disposal.

Picture slides on his territory accompanied his inspiring talk. The Divine Word Missionary, comparatively small in stature and wearing a flowing beard, is an authority in the ethnic and cultural customs of the people.

More information on Father Ross may be found in Lowell Thomas' New Guinea, The Land That Time Forgot in January 1964 issue of READER'S DIGEST. Father Ross will return to New Guinea after a furlough at home with his relatives and friends.

OFFER REWARD FOR PERSONS SETTING WOOD FIRES

As a positive step toward combating devastating forest fires, the Mississippi Forestry Association, an organization of individuals and companies interested in forestry development, has launched a state-wide forest fire reward program. Announcement of the program was made by James M. Vardaman, Jackson chairman of the MFA Forest Fire Reward Committee. Vardaman said that tree farmers from all parts of the state have pledged a total of $10,000 to be used in offering a $500 reward in each county for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons for setting wood fires. Last year, according to the State Forestry Commission, Mississippi suffered nearly 9,000 forest fires which destroyed more than 40,000 acres at a loss of $34 million. Besides timber destroyed, this loss also included a number of crops, fences, barns, and other buildings. Vardaman said that the Mississippi Forestry Association, a citizens organization of timberland owners, wood-using plants, and other businesses, is working in cooperation with the State Forestry Commission in the reward program. In each county personnel of the Commission are posting notices of the reward in public places and at the scene of burned forested areas. Vardaman said that the reward program was started last year and by the end of the fire season four counties were participating. The effectiveness of the program led the MFA board of directors to make the project state wide.

We have a number of wild turkey hunters in Hancock County and according to reports, there are more turkeys at this time than in previous years. It is not unusual to be walking through the woods and flush a wild turkey. Turkeys are a shy old bird and it takes an experienced hunter to take them. Like all other game, there are laws to preserve them.

Hunting, feeding and hunting turkeys with dogs or live decoys operated calling or mechanically are prohibited by regulation of the Fish and Game Commission.

ST. MARTIN DEFEATS BAY HIGH, 24-14

Fullback Harold Babuchna ran for three touchdowns Friday night while leading the St. Martin Yellow Jackets to a 24-14 victory over the Bay High Tigers at St. Martin.

It was a key Gulf Coast Conference football contest and the victory left St. Martin undefeated in seven starts. It was the second loss in seven outings for the Tigers of Coach Lance Lumpkin.

Babuchna scored two touchdowns in the second quarter on runs of three and four yards, then added his final six-point in the last quarter on a two-yard plunge.

St. Martin marched 63 yards in six plays for the game's first touchdown. Quarterback Mike Letort capped the drive on a two-yard run, but a 31-yard run by Babuchna set up the tally.

Don Fountain capped a 35-yard scoring plunge, and Donald Moore kicked two extra points.

Bay High averted a shutout late in the fourth quarter on a 26-yard scoring pass from Johnny Penton to end Mike Strong.

Both teams resume action next Friday. St. Martin travels to Ocean Springs to take on the Ocean Springs Greys, and Bay High entertains Poplarville.

being a (fast pitch) softball player. Jess can only brag of his favorite sport, golf. He played in the Houston Open and says he likes a little fishing and hunting. Looking forward to that golf game, Jess.

Plenty of bait shrimp are being caught at this time but the largest we have seen caught lately measured 6 to 7 inches in length.

They are fine for still fishing provided you cut them up in pieces. For eating they are excellent.

According to reports, Hilda, the latest hurricane to visit this section, didn't do much damage to the fishing grounds out in the Louisiana marshes. Speckies have been caught since the hurricane and fishing should be good for quite a while. According to reports speckies have been caught in Bayou Caddy and should continue to come in as the weather gets cooler. Trolling for speckies in Bayou Caddy is usually good from now until January and February.

Some of our best trolling is up Jordan River, Wolf River and Bayou DeLala.

Push Gex and Ben Hille are two of our best trolling fishermen and usually get their share. You can look for them from now on mostly up Jordan River.

Contrary to belief, trolling is not an easy way to catch fish but is fun and takes skill and know-how.

When catching fish from the Highway bridge, when you hook one, hit him the second time to really set the hook. It's a long way from the water to the top of the bridge and you will have less chance of the fish falling off.

Matches are wonderful things when needed, but they are a menace to setting fire to the woods. When lighting cigarettes, etc., be sure the match is out before throwing it in the grass. Forest fires can cause a lot of damage to property and game. Be a good sport.

If you have hunting and fishing news you would like printed, send it to the Hancock County Eagle, care of Dec Elliott. Will be glad to insert it in this column.

HOMER GREGORY

Homer, with the Mississippi Power Company for many years, is tops when it comes to quail hunting. He has owned many good dogs which he shared with his buddies. Homer, said during the 1934 season he brought home 654 quail. Paid $20.00 for his first bird dog, ($5 down and $5 per month) and the last dog cost him $500.00. Shells in those days cost $11.00 per case. When hunting as a boy, he used black powder and had to wait until the smoke screen passed to see whether you hit the game or not. Homer still hunts, but says he has slowed down a bit. Haven't we all?

FEDERAL AGENTS DESTROY STILL

With the aid of air search and ground teams, federal agents last week seized and destroyed 48 moonshine stills in two Coast counties.

Agents of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the Internal Revenue Service said the stills and their daily production represented a tax fraud of about $7,300,000 per year, or $20,000 per day.

Gulfport agents said that nearly every federal agent in the state of Mississippi joined in the crash program which started with ground crews seizing those stills which already had been pinpointed on the map and winding up the last three days with air search teams.

Federal agents made their attack in all of Hancock County and about a quarter of Harrison County, the two counties believed to be the highest producing moonshine whiskey areas in the state, the agents said.

Beginning their air-ground operation, the agents covered the entire area again, working west from Wolf River to the western shore of the Gulf of Mexico.

The operation was so quick that an accurate compilation of figures as to the amount of whiskey and other material seized and destroyed has not yet been completed.

Words of the attack spread so fast that only four men were actually caught at their stills and arrested. Many others, however, were put out of business.

The four, found operating separate stills in Hancock County, were identified by agents as Edison Hoda, Lavender Ladner, Elmer Junior Ladner and James Herbert "Cotton" Swilley. Swilley was arraigned before U. S. District Commissioner Verta Lee Sweetman and released on $750 bond. The other three men will be arraigned next Monday, agents said.

The week-long attack was described by federal men as "highly successful." The stills seized covered a wide range of sizes and production capabilities with the largest consisting of 10,000 gallons of mash and the smallest, 200 gallons. About 1,000 fermenters were recovered in the attack.

With most of the stills well hidden in wooded areas the largest,

1965 AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

The Agricultural Conservation Program for 1965 will again encourage farmers to shift their production of surplus crops to less fertile land and to establish practices for conservation of soil, water, woodland, and wildlife where needed, according to Tommy R. Shaw, Chairman of the Hancock Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee.

The county has been allocated $12,845.00 in program funds this year to help carry out conservation practices on farms. The chairman explained that the local cost-sharing program has been formulated within the national program authority, to include practices which will best meet the conservation problems of the particular area. This is done annually by an ACP Development Group, composed of the ASC committee, Soil Conservation Service technician, and Mississippi Forest Service forester advised by others with conservation interests.

As in previous years, farmer-elected ASC committees will administer the program and will relate it to work plans of the local soil and water conservation district. The Soil Conservation Service and forestry agencies are responsible for technical phases of certain practices. A list of approved ACP practices, for which the program will again cover approximately half the cost, is available at the USCS county office.

In announcing the national ACP for 1965, the 30th program year, Secretary of Agriculture Freeman said: "This program, which reaches into every State and agricultural county, is playing an increasingly important role in our efforts to improve rural areas - not only in their physical environment but also in their economic outlook. It is an important part of the on-going war against poverty."

"Rural lands are the source of nearly all the Nation's food and fiber, but if neglected, these lands are also the source of soil erosion and silted streams. The farm fields where ACP is helping to promote conservation measures contribute vitally to clean usable water for the day-to-day living of our towns and cities as well as for the industry which provides employment for their people. At the same time that the conserve agricultural resources, they bring other secondary benefits through creating more wildlife habitat and recreation opportunities."

"I am particularly gratified by ACP's progress in helping low-income said, was found near Neacsa Crossing and the second largest at Sellers, both in Hancock County.

COMMUNITY SERVICES FOR MENTALLY RETARDED UNDER STUDY

Residential and community services for Mississippi's mentally retarded are under intensive study today for a special task group activated by the Mississippi Mental Retardation Planning Council.

The Council, an inter-agency body of 13 members representing the various groups and professions concerned with mental retardation, is headed by Travis McChesney, director of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, State Department of Education, as Council chairman. The Task Group on Residential and Community Services is headed by Mrs. John Mason, first vice-president of the Mississippi Association for Retarded Children and a past president of the Harrison County Association for Retarded Children.

Her group is one of four which will propose recommendations to the Council for their assigned areas of mental retardation study. The other three groups are looking into (1) prevention and clinical services, (2) education and training of the mentally retarded and (3) public information and the law as it regards the mentally retarded.

The task group on residential and community services will concentrate on existing facilities and long-range needs in such things as residential institutions, home care, day care, recreation, referral services, all as they relate to the mentally retarded.

The group is gathering information on the state's residential services. The group visited Ellisville State School in August and toured facilities for mentally retarded Negroes at Whitfield on September 25.

Mrs. Mason said her group will also study the need for effective and comprehensive community programs which would include day care centers, pre-school nurseries, post-school programs, adult programs, halfway houses, recreation, especially designed for the retarded, day camps, summer camps, and private residential facilities.

"Our services to the mentally retarded fall far short of the need," said Mrs. Mason. "There is a need now, to develop diversified residential facilities closely tied in with community life. There is also a need for local services adapted to the varying needs of the individuals we are trying to help, both the mentally retarded and their families."

She added: "Community programs and services for the mentally retarded have been in existence in Mississippi for years, in one form or another. But what we are trying to do in this planning program is to organize them more effectively. Formation of the Mental Retardation Planning Council is the most far-reaching step yet taken in accomplishing this goal."

Mrs. Mason cited the need for effective coordination of public and private resources in achieving needed services statewide and also at each community level.

Besides Mrs. Mason as chairman, the task group includes the following Mississippians, all working as unpaid volunteers:

Mrs. Amy Burks, Ripley; Mrs. J. M. Furr, R. N., supervisor of residential care at Ellisville State School, Ellisville; Dr. Jack Kellum, Jr., director of the Union County Health Department, New Albany; Eddie Khayat, Moss Point, executive director of the Mississippi Association of Supervisors; Miss Anne McInnis, consultant on group care services, Child Welfare Division, State Department of Public Welfare, Jackson; John A. Raskberry, Tupelo, clerk of chancery court, Lee county; Sister Mary Suzanne, supervisor of Catholic Charities, Jackson; Dr. James Grant, Jackson; and Mrs. Mattie Townsend, Cleveland, public health nurse for the Bolivar County Health Department.

Chalmers Lane, director, Ellisville State School, Ellisville, is serving as Council representative on the group.

FOREIGN NOTES

ATLANTA, GA. - Purchases of pulpwood grown in Mississippi and delivered to pulp and paper mills during 1963 totaled $44,945,000 according to H. J. Malsberger of Atlanta, general manager of the Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association.

Last year's total for the state, as added, was five percent lower than the value of $46,000,000 reported for the deliveries.

These figures were based on the results of a 12-state survey conducted by the U. S. Forest Service Experiment Station at Asheville, N. C. and New Orleans, La., in cooperation with SPCA.

Among the 78 counties in the state where pulpwood was produced, the three leading counties, and the value of deliveries shipped from each, were Clarke, $1,821,780; Greene, $1,489,280; and Lauderdale, $1,192,720.

Mississippi's share in the production of wood raw materials for the pulp and paper industry, Mr. Malsberger said, was part of an all-time high pulpwood harvest for the South as a whole.

The region's total for 1963 was $531,820,000, a gain of four percent of the total for the nation, Mr. Malsberger stressed, but was also greater than that of any single foreign country and more than in any area of comparable size in the world.

He emphasized, too, that figures projected from Federal Government surveys show that for the South as a whole, there is a continuing favorable ratio of forest growth over removal. This includes removal of trees harvested for man's use, as well as losses resulting from fire, insects, and disease.

"The demand for paper and other pulpwood products expands every year," he added, "and, although there are fluctuating market conditions in some localities, for the South as a whole the market outlook favors the continued incentive for wise forest management."

THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

You are summoned to appear before the Chancery Court of the County of Hancock, in said State, on the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1964, to defend the suit No. 8892 in said Court of Edward P. Gurry to then and there show cause why an order should not be signed to reduce the amount of the said Louis Mae Bankston Gurry, for the care, support and maintenance of their three minor children, wherein you are a defendant.
